THE FIRST SESSION of the annual meeting of the managers of the General Electric Company was held on Oct. 28 at the main office of the company in Schenectady, N. Y. Owing to the national interest taken in the business affairs of the industrial world to-day the principal topic during the meeting was a discussion of the general situation in the electrical field. Due to the fact that Vice-President J. R. Lovejoy has not entirely recovered from his recent illness, Vice-President B. E. Sunny, of Chicago, presided. The satisfactory condition of the company's business was indicated by a statement that orders received during the current year to date exceeded those of the corresponding period of last year by fully 15 per cent. The volume of orders and prospective demand for supplies and for the various lines of smaller electrical devices which the company manufactures is very satisfactory. Dr. Thomas Addison, manager of the Pacific coast territory, reported a recent order for a Curtis steam turbine generator of unusual size. This machine which will be one of the largest power producers ever built for electrical purposes will have a normal capacity of 20,000 horse-power. Generally encouraging sentiment regarding the business outlook prevailed among the company's managers. The company's foreign business continues to show gratifying increases. Among those in attendance were the following:

C. A. Coffin, president; B. W. Rice, Jr., Vice-President; Hinsdill Parsons, vice-president; R. E. Sunny, vice-president, Chicago; Anson W. Burchard, assistant to president; M. F. Westover, secretary; H. W. Darling, treasurer; Edward Clark, general auditor; J. R. McKee, manager power and mining department; W. J. Clark, manager foreign department; C. D. Haskins, manager lighting department; J. G. Barry, manager railway department; D. R. Bullen, manager supply department; G. E. Emmons, manager Schenectady works; W. C. Fish, manager Lynn works; George F. Morrison, manager Harrison works; Thomas Addison, Pacific coast manager; E. D. Mullen, manager Philadelphia office; C. B. Davis, manager Boston office; Gen. Irving Hale, manager Denver office; T. Beran, manager New York office; A. F. Giles, manager Atlanta office; J. B. Pevear, manager Cincinnati office; E. E. Gilbert, turbine sales manager; P. D. Wagoner, transformer sales manager; A. D. Page, manager incandescent lamp sales; W. L. R. Emmett, engineer lighting department; D. B. Rushmore, engineer power and mining department; M. P. Rice, publication bureau; F. H. Gale, in charge of advertising.

THE UNDERSIGNED desire to assure the clients of the Westinghouse Machine Co and all others interested, that there should be no occasion for apprehension because of the company's application for a receivership

This action was deliberately and thoughtfully taken as a sensible and logical measure for conserving the interests of the customers, creditors and stockholders of a solvent institution which is doing a large and profitable trade.

From such examination of its affairs as the receivers have been able to make in the short time during which they have been in charge of the property, it would appear that the Westinghouse Machine Co. has been suffering from nothing more serious than a rapidly growing and profitable business. This has necessitated the employment of considerable borrowed capital and credit throughout the country, the sudden withdrawal of which would have seriously interfered with the manufacturing operations of the company.

There has not been even a momentary pause in the operations of the company, and the personnel remains the same as heretofore. There will be no departure from the general policy that has hitherto obtained in the conduct of the business, and the receivers will, during their incumbency, spare no pains to foster and maintain the cordial relations that have always existed between the Westinghouse Machine Co. and its customers.

TRADE PUBLICATIONS.

HELVE HAMMERS.—Parker Hoist & Machine Co., 971 N. Francisco Ave., Chicago. Paper; 3½ × 6¼ ins.; pp. 12; illustrated.

The Hathorn helve hammer for die and stamping work is operated from the shaft of a belt wheel and controlled by a foot lever and brake. Testimonials are given from shops using this hammer. A vertical gasoline engine for shop work is also described.

VALVES.—The Fairbanks Co., New York. Paper; 5¼ × 7¼ ins.; pp. 64; illustrated.

Valves for a great variety of purposes and of a number of different materials are illustrated, dimensioned and priced. Fire hydrants and accessories, extension valve boxes and indicator valve posts are also included.

STEAM ENGINES.—A. L. Ide & Sons, Springfield, Ill. Paper; 9 × 6 ins.; pp. 76; illustrated.

This catalog is built on the loose-leaf plan, with means for extension as the company sends additional sheets. It covers by text and photograph—sectional and assembled, and of existing plants—the "Ideal" engines, simple and compound, for direct-connected operation in power-plant work.

DOOR HARDWARE AND CARRIERS.—Allith Mfg. Co., Taylor St. and 43d Ave., Chicago. Paper; 7 × 10 ins.; pp. 64; illustrated.

This is an illustrated price list of hangers, carriers and fittings for hinged and sliding fire doors, shutters, etc. The carriers are also applicable to large doors in residences, freight house doors, etc. They are used also for a system of package carriers for stores and offices.

LARGE WATER METERS, REGULATING VALVES, ETC.—Simplex Valve & Meter Co., 112 North Broad St., Philadelphia, Pa. Paper; 6 × 9¼ ins.; pp. 40; illustrated.

The Simplex water meter now in use on a considerable number of water-works is first described and illustrated. This meter includes Venturi tubes and both rate-indicating and volume-registering apparatus. A rate controller, loss-of-head gage and an automatic air valve are also described.

ENGINEERING INSTRUMENTS AND NAUTICAL DEVICES.—George I. Herrick, C. E., Wheaton, Ill. Paper; two pamphlets, 3¾ × 5¾ ins.; pp. 24 and 48; illustrated.

The smaller pamphlet contains reproductions of the patent drawings and specifications for the following: (1) a protractor tape for laying off and measuring angles; (2) a tape-holder or case for rapidly winding up the tape; (3) a surveyor's pin, with attachment for holding the tape; (4) a plate for making stencil plates used for making stencils for the reproduction of drawings containing circles, tangents and radii. There is also a reprint of a paper on "Recent Inventions in Engineering Measuring Instruments," read before the Illinois Society of Engineers. The larger pamphlet describes a flagstaff with apparatus for winding up the flag within the staff, but the most important device is a mariner's compass with a mechanical "course-corrector" for making allowances for the conditions necessary to be taken into account in holding a vessel to a true course (such as leeway, the set of the screw, current, etc.). This was awarded a medal at the St. Louis exhibition.

FIRE BRICK AND REFRACTORIES.—The Harbison-Walker Refractories Co., Pittsburg. Two leatherette-bound general catalogs; 4¼ × 6¾ ins., pp. 110 and 97; four pamphlets 6 × 8 ins., and three booklets 3½ × 6 ins.; all illustrated but pamphlet on coke ovens.

The foregoing item covers but briefly a very attractive array of trade literature. The first two are the most attractively clothed catalogs of manufactured products that we recall having seen for some time, resembling outwardly engineers' pocketbooks rather than catalogs. Both are devoted to fire brick in many forms and sizes and all sorts of fire-clay shapes, for coke ovens, locomotive fire boxes, iron and steel furnaces, kilns, etc. One book, issued by the Pittsburg house, is bound in black; the other is from the Portsmouth Harbison-Walker Co., of Portsmouth, Ohio, and is bound in red with a pocket and flap; both are supplemented with tables of various information, and both have blank pages for memoranda in the back.

Of the pamphlets, one on "Malleable and Air Furnaces" contains 20 pages, including dimension drawings and a photograph; "pointers" and test data make its contents interesting. Another describes in 22 pages, "Fire Brick Used in the Manufacture of Portland Cement," and will be of particular interest in view of the rapid growth of the Portland cement industry in this country; a folded-in dimension drawing is added to facilitate ordering. A third of 14 pages bears the title "Beehive Coke Ovens," and covers the refractory materials used in oven building. A fourth is one of 13 pages of statistical information on blast-furnace linings. These pamphlets are all printed on heavy linen bond paper.

Of the booklets, they are respectively "The Effect of Using Inferior Clay with High-Grade Fire Brick"; "A Little Talk on Brick for Boiler Settings"; and "A Little Talk on Brick for Cupola Linings."
